

WWOOF - Willing Workers On Organic Farms

Jan und die Glasgower im Juli

Name: Helen Richardson

I'm 24 and live in Glasgow, Scotland; on holiday having just finished university. I came here with 4 friends from Scotland for 10 days. Everyone at the farm was very friendly. We had our own wee house with kitchen, sitting room, beds...shared with other Woofers from Australia, Germany, America. We worked around 8 hours a day, harvesting (beans, tomatoes, zucchini), weeding, planting. There was plenty of really good food. The weather was beautiful, we had a great time!

I came here on a whim, really. Having just got a degree in philosophy, what else is there to do but pick beans, eh? Which there was quite a lot of. Also weeding, which is a bit like picking beans, only you throw away the results. The weather was extraordinary, but maybe this is because I live in Glasgow, Scotland usually, so consecutive days of sunlight are barely comprehensible. Everyone is very nice, and not a bunch of hippies like I thought they might be. But Heiner does look a bit like Captain Beefheart. The food is amazing; and it just, like, grows out of the ground and stuff! Score.

I have been wwoofing in Germany for a couple of weeks, in search of the Promised Land. It is nice at Hof Harwege because there is a routine and we have our own home - which makes a change from Glasgow. While I was here the routine was quite stringent, but this may not have been strictly necessary and could just have been because we did not want to look rubbish in comparison to a highly motivated American woman who was here at the start of our stay. It was sunny which was nice and made it a bit like a beach holiday. We enjoyed nattering in the fields like the peasant women of olde. Thank you family Harwege!

Ich komme aus Langenhagen, einer kleinen Stadt nahe Hannover. Ich bin 18 Jahre alt und besuche das Gymnasium. Vom WWOOFEN habe ich mir einige interessante Erfahrungen versprochen und ich wurde nicht enttäuscht. Zwölf Tage haben gereicht, um mir einen Einblick in die Landwirtschaft zu gewähren. Die Arbeit war zwar manchmal anstrengend, da sie jedoch sehr abwechslungsreich war, wurde es nie langweilig. Als besonders lehrreich betrachte ich den Anbau bzw. die Ernte verschiedener Gemüsesorten. Zudem war ich auf einem Wochenmarkt in Hamburg, wo ich auch selbst verkaufen durfte. Sehr spannend! Schließlich haben auch noch die netten Leute und das sehr gute Wetter zu einem einzigartigen Erlebnis beigetragen.
